Former Citizen Of This Town Succumbs To Death At Uniontown.

IS ILLNESS WAS

well known citizens died at various times in this city Monday evening last. The following are the names of those who passed away:

John C. Martin was 70 years of age and has been closely associated with the business interest of Uniontown since leaving here in the year of 1876. He had been afflicted with asthma for many years, he was thought to be in comparatively good health. Last week he was taken ill with pneumonia of the stomach and owing to his infirmities he succumbed to the attack, passing away Monday evening as stated. His remains were taken to Hawesville Tuesday morning.

Mr. J. H. Hinkle was 69 years of age; two children, Charles Martin, now at Birmingham, Ala. Sterling, another son, who lives in the west, did not attend the funeral.

John C. Martin was born in Sardinia, Ohio, on the 21st day of August, 1821. After gaining an excellent education at Athens College in Brackenridge county, he came to Cincinnati where he became engaged in business and remained in Cincinnati till 1839 when

He turned up trading boat and started down the Ohio, and on down the Mississippi into the Gulf. He continued in the store boating business until 1847. He then settled in Cloverport, Ky., and there engaged in merchandising until 1860. He moved to Hawesville in 1862 and there remained until 1874, when he went to Newburg, Ind., and remained there two years. In 1876 he came to Fultontown where he has since resided, and is a respected citizen. The deceased has been connected in a business way with many local enterprises. At the time of

At his death he was acting as a pension agent, for a number of years he has done quite a large amount of business in this line. The deceased is survived by a widow and three children. The children all grown and reside elsewhere. Capt. Martin as he was familiarly known to Uniontown, will be missed by his many friends here, and the memory of one who has so long been associated with this community will live on in the scenes of his last days.

Question Answered.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers' and grandmothers, never thought of using any ing case for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration, Heart Failure, etc. They used Angust Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, to regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headache and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's Angust Flower, in any liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by—A. R. FISHER.

School Board Meets.

At the meeting of the School Board

Monday evening, the following teachers were elected for the coming year; Prof. V. B. Maple, principal, Mrs. Ella Greer, first assistant, Miss Mary Moorman, second assistant and Miss Ella Robertson, primary room.

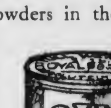

The success of our school for 1900-1901 is an assured fact from the beginning, as all of the teachers selected have taught here in the past and are much liked by all.

"Clever" Patrick In Town.

Mr. FATHALL DILLON, of the firm of R. F. Dillard, Dillon & Co., at Hardinsburgh, has been admitted through the city Tuesday. Mr. DILLON by close application to business has built up one of the largest import and export and blacksmith establishments in this section of the state.

THE GREAT NATIONAL CAMPAIGN.

On Tuesday, June 19, about 20,000 loyal and enthusiastic Republicans will gather in Philadelphia. They will proceed, in the deliberate manner of all large bodies, to nominate candidates for president and vice president.

Only about 900 of those present will be authorized delegates. As many more will be interested. A hundred or so will serve as officers of the convention. The other 19,000 will stand around, talk a great deal, shout whenever there is opportunity and add to the general picturesqueness and importance of the affair.

This will be the twelfth national convention held by the Republican party. The first one was held in Philadelphia, as this one will be, that was in 1853, when John C. Fremont was nominated.

George W. Wiswell, (sergeant-at-arms.) Instead, Philadelphia has not had a Republican national convention since 1872, when Grant was unanimously re-nominated.

Like the convention of 1872, it is expected that the coming one will be simply a grand ratification meeting at which the McKinley administration will be endorsed and the present chief executive named as a candidate to succeed himself.

Philadelphia wanted this convention so much that she paid $100,000 in cash and is to spend nearly as much more in entertainment. One of the chief items of expense is the provision of the convention hall. You may rest on the fingers of one hand the buildings large enough and at the same time suitable for accommodating a national political convention. Chicago has one and New York has another, but both these cities have come to the conclusion that political conventions are expensive luxuries. They do not pay.

Generally it has been found necessary to put up a building especially for convention purposes. These temporary structures have often been ramshackle affairs, lacking ventilation, acoustic properties and all comfortable qualities. In them the delegates have sweated and anticipated sudden death from collapsed walls. It is almost wonderful that no serious accidents have ever marred any of the big conventions.

But the building in which Philadelphia will house the Republican delegates is said to be well fitted for the purpose and far more substantial than many structures formerly used for such purposes. It was built for the National import exposition and not only possesses architectural attractions, but is solidly built. The Philadelphia insist, too, that the big auditorium which is to be erected under its roof will have all sorts of desirable qualities.

The auditorium was originally used as the main exposition building and was divided into several halls. Out of these the carpenters have constructed one mammoth hall with a floor space of 80,000 feet and a seating capacity of 15,000. The floor will be elevated in tiers, and there will be numerous large aisles. There will also be committee rooms, press bureau and telegraph offices. It is costing about $25,000 to put the building in shape.

The acoustics of the great building, which are already excellent, will be further improved by the erection of an immense sounding board directly over the stage, and experts claim that the hearing properties will then surpass those of any hall ever used for a similar purpose. The new stage will be semicircular and raised in steps, so that the speaker may be seen from any point in the building, the speakers' platform being placed well forward.

The committee has also given careful attention to the matter of handling the crowds at the hall, and extensive arrangements are being made to insure order, to limit admission to the building to those having credentials or tickets and to obviate all crowding or difficulty in reaching seats.

The delegates will be arranged according to states, each state having a separate section, in the center of which will rise a big placard bearing the state's name, very much as sections are arranged at stock exchanges.

Provision is made for a small army of newspaper men and telegraphers, so that the will of the convention may be announced to the country the moment a platform is accepted and candidates are chosen.

The convention hall is located at Thirtieth and South streets, within 13 minutes' ride of the center of the city, and, surrounded by the various buildings of Philadelphia's most noted seat of learning, the University of Pennsylvania. Only half a square away is the magnificent University museum, recently opened in memory of the late Dr. Pepper, and Franklin Hall, the scene of many hard fought inter-collegiate contests, is directly across the street. But a little farther removed are law schools, dispensaries, hospitals and other buildings devoted to intellectual development.

National conventions are always costly. It has been estimated that the people of the United States spend more than $100,000,000 in every four years merely on the business of nominating presidential candidates. This seems almost incredible until you begin to reckon up the various items. Let us say, for example, that 20,000 Republicans will go to Philadelphia.

Why, a schoolboy could understand that. But actually a national convention is something very different. It is much more subtle. The influence which one strong mind has over others, the evolution of an intangible and unspoken sentiment into a well defined movement, the struggle of concentrated mental energy against a mass of unstable individuality—all these things enter into the doings of a political convention.

Sometimes the deep laid, well matured plans of strong leaders—plans which have been months in the making, which have been perfected secretly at midnight—are forced upon the surprised delegates and driven through by sheer strength.

Thus, again, it is a half hysterical woman who only jumps on a chair and shouts and waves her parasol while several thousand usually calm, self possessed men are hypnotized into following her lead.

Probably the most unsatisfactory honor and yet one highly prized is that bestowed on the chairman of a national convention. In the first place, the honor is brief. The permanent chairman is not selected until the convention is organized. Then for a few brief hours he is much observed. His name is on all tongues. But then come the nomina-tating orators with their prodigies of eloquence, the fever interest of the balloting, and before the chairman realizes it the great body which has set him for a moment before the convention has done its work and dispersed.

The really important officer of the convention is the sergeant-at-arms. He begins his work long before the convention meets, and he is a figure of prominence every moment it is in session. The chairman has almost no patronage at his command, but this other functionary gives it out in chunks. His title would be far more accurate were he termed the convention's business manager.

The sergeant-at-arms is appointed by the convention's subcommittee of national committee. All matters of general convention policy are discussed and settled by the subcommittee, but the carrying out of the details is entrusted to the sergeant-at-arms solely. In short, the sergeant-at-arms is in the way of doing either a good deal of good or a good deal of harm, according to his lights.

Financially his responsibilities are heavy, since he is the large amount he pays out in local expenses he has to arrange in a measure for the expenditure of several times as much more, and thus the total expenses of a convention may be greatly increased or decreased by the sergeant-at-arms. It certainly may be said with truth that he must be a man of exceptional judgment, great capacity and unusual executive force.

If the duties of the convention sergeant-at-arms were fully indicated by the foregoing paragraphs, he would have comparatively an easy time, but his work would be only partially done were he to stop with getting the hall in good order and making the arrangements for the press.

Providing for the comfort and convenience of the delegates is really the most important of all his tasks. This involves arranging the seats in the body of the hall and the galleries so that all shall be satisfied and furnishing the various subcommittee rooms and the like. There are tickets and badges to be printed, and, though you might not think it, this is a job of no small magnitude. Giving out the contract for printing the tickets is one of the first things attended to. It has already been looked after by the Republican national committee who will be very much in evidence in Philadelphia during the convention is Major Charles Dick. Major Dick is at all times a busy man, and he will be very much so when the delegates are assembled.

At present Dick is in major command, commanding the national guard of Ohio; chairman of the Republican committee of the state, the representative from the Nineteenth or Garfield, Wade and Giddings district, and secretary of the national committee. Incidentally it may be observed that this active young man is also a member of a law firm and does his share of the work, so that two partners have no cause to complain.

If Senator Hanna's rheumatism puts a veto on the president's request that he manage next year's campaign, it is a moral certainty that Mr. McKinley will ask Dick to undertake the herculean task. Even if the senator remains at the head of the committee, the ubiquitous and never ruffled Dick will be the chief of staff. He will be the kitchen of the campaign. Dick was chief of staff in 1890, although nominally he was but an assistant secretary of the national committee. William McKinley, Osborn, now consul general at London, held the title.

Another member of the national Republican committee who will be in the forefront of things at Philadelphia in June is First Assistant Postmaster General Perry B. Henth, who is chairman of the committee on organization and literature. Mr. Henth is a well known newspaper man who is slated for higher honors.

There are to be numerous old war horses who will be able to recall the early history of the party. Perhaps there may be one or two present who were actual spectators of the convention which occurred in Philadelphia in 1850, and which resulted in the birth of the Republican party. The convention which nominated John C. Fremont was much unlike a modern national convention. In the first place, there were less than ten delegates assembled, and they by no means represented the whole country.

The issues which then made politics so stirring have been long dead; that they have almost been forgotten. At the beginning of the year 1850 there were four parties in the eastern states: the Democrats, the Whigs, the Know Nothings and the Republicans. The Whigs and Democrats inclined to unite against the Republicans, who were then gaining strength. Most of the Know Nothings joined the Republicans. In the west, except in Ohio, where the Whigs still prevailed, the parties were Democratic and Republicans. In the south the American party absorbed the Whig struggle. The first Republican convention was anomalous in American history. Its delegates were not chosen by any set rule, but no more than a few hundred number of votes to which a state was entitled. All the northern states were represented. John C. Fremont was named for vice president. It resulted in 259 for William L. Dayton of New Jersey, 110 for Abraham Lincoln of Illinois. Mr. Dayton was then unanimously nominated.

The selection of Fremont was due to his previous nomination by the seceding Know Nothings. The Republican platform denounced slavery and demanded that Kansas be admitted as a free state.

Perhaps the greatest surprise ever sprung on a Republican convention was the discovery of Lincoln. Up to within a few months of the convention it was a foregone conclusion that Seward would be the nominee. There was even a "Rail Splitter" was invited to go east and make an address to the New York Republicans.

Even before Seward made his announcement of the coming conflict Lincoln had declared in a speech that this nation could not exist half slave, half free.

"I do not expect to see the Union dissolved," said he, "but I do expect that ability for organization and executive work. In the handling of political conventions he is already experienced, having been assistant sergeant-at-arms of the Republican national convention at Chicago in 1888, at Minneapolis in 1892 and at St. Louis in 1890.

Sergeant-at-arms Wiswell will have the assistance and advice of Colonel Swords, who has probably had more experience in the direction of conventions than any other man in the country.

There was even a "Rail Splitter" was invited to go east and make an address to the New York Republicans.

Even before Seward made his announcement of the coming conflict Lincoln had declared in a speech that this nation could not exist half slave, half free.

It will become in the end either all slave or all free."

And in this homely sentence he had conveyed to his party in the west more forcibly perhaps than Seward had the same truth which was in the mind of each.

Strange and uncouth looked this man of the tribes to the cultured people of New York, but they listened to his inspired words and were won over. When the convention met in Chicago, May 10, 1860, the delegates were very much split up, with Seward in the lead. As the balloting progressed, however, the states swung into line for Lincoln.

Occasionally a political convention furnishes a stirring and dramatic scene which is long remembered. It is often that they are entirely dull. The coming gathering in Philadelphia promises to be no exception.

Major Charles Dick, (Secretary of national Republican committee.)

He is nothing like the battle royal which was seen at Cincinnati in 1878, when Maine and Conkling faced each other on the platform as they had often faced each other on the floor of congress.

Never were more brilliant nominating speeches made. That of Ingersoll, in which he named the Plumed Knight of Maine, is counted among the political classics. It was at this convention that the Cameron forces were held so strongly together that when Indiana gave her vote to Hayes at the fifth ballot the stampede of delegates followed and the dark horse came under the wire.

The Republican convention of 1860 will be more apt to reproduce something of the scene at Chicago when in 1868 Grant was first nominated. The Grant convention was full of the enthusiasm that must inevitably associate with the name of the victorious general of a great war. There was no contest, and the spectacle was rather a mass meeting to celebrate the restoration of the Union and the end of the term of the almost impeached Johnson than a convention of a political party.

For hours the vast assembly did little but stand on its feet and cheer and sing patriotic songs. Old Jesse Grant, father of the general, stood near the front of the stage, his tears coursing down his cheeks, witnessing the glorification of his son.

Only once in the history of Republican conventions has there been an equal, and that was in Minneapolis in 1882 when more than 10,000 people cheered for a full half hour as they cheered, with a pretty woman standing on a chair and beating time, that familiar sign of the times.

And the delegates, after they had shouted themselves into an exhausted condition in repeating the name of Blaine, voted for Harrison when the time came.

This year there will be more than unusual interest in the contest for second place. The delegates will be constantly told that the vice president is a mere figurehead and that the senate roster is the top shelf of political shillings. Yet there is never a lack of aspirants for this discredited post. As a matter of fact, there are few men whose political ambitions are so lofty that they would scorn the vice presidency, so we may expect a lively scramble for the place.

What will be the nature of the dramatic scene which will make this convention unlike all others? No one can tell. For this reason the country at large waits with interest the turning of that leaf of the future on which we may read the story.

These are the things upon which partisan spirit feeds. The machinery of a great political convention is very simple in theory and very complex in practice. Thus, again, it is a half hysterical woman who only jumps on a chair and shouts and waves her parasol while several thousand usually calm, self possessed men are hypnotized into following her lead.

Probably the most unsatisfactory honor and yet one highly prized is that bestowed on the chairman of a national convention. In the first place, the honor is brief. The permanent chairman is not selected until the convention is organized. Then for a few brief hours he is much observed. His name is on all tongues. But then come the nomina-tating orators with their prodigies of eloquence, the fever interest of the balloting, and before the chairman realizes it the great body which has set him for a moment before the convention has done its work and dispersed.

The really important officer of the convention is the sergeant-at-arms. He begins his work long before the convention meets, and he is a figure of prominence every moment it is in session. The chairman has almost no patronage at his command, but this other functionary gives it out in chunks. His title would be far more accurate were he termed the convention's business manager.

The sergeant-at-arms is appointed by the convention's subcommittee of national committee. All matters of general convention policy are discussed and settled by the subcommittee, but the carrying out of the details is entrusted to the sergeant-at-arms solely. In short, the sergeant-at-arms is in the way of doing either a good deal of good or a good deal of harm, according to his lights.

Financially his responsibilities are heavy, since he is the large amount he pays out in local expenses he has to arrange in a measure for the expenditure of several times as much more,

HAVE YOU SEEN THE NEWS' Wonderful Calculating Pencil?

The pencil that figures with a twist of the wrist? That figures quicker than you can and never makes a mistake? That calculates anything from 1x13 to 12x24 in the twink of an eye? That gives you hundreds upon hundreds of calculations with the swiftness and accuracy of an expert?

THE NEWS' CALCULATING PENCIL

Can you tell as quickly as this pencil how much 11x$24 is? or, 9 dozen at $1.80 cost? or, how much 3 per cent of $1617 is? etc. "It is truly a little wonder," says the Pittsburgh Press. "It is a marvel of ingenious mechanism and has excited a great deal of interest among our readers," says the Boston Traveler. "An article of the greatest educational merits," says the Ouths Companion.

CAN YOU BEAT IT?

Made of pure Aluminum and is attached to a pencil of standard quality. Fits any common lead pencil. Is also a pencil point protector, a pencil lengthener and eraser. Can be carried in the vest pocket. A regular 25 cent article. Special introductory price 15 cents.

VALUABLE DOG

About one month ago there departed from this community a dog of remarkable ancestry. He was possessed of wonderful vivacity and looked upon by his associates as the King of all dogs. His name was Daniel which indeed was very appropriate. As a bird dog the field he had few equals. In color he was white with pretty black spots covering his body.
His owner, Mr. Richard Hudson, Civil Engineer of the "Henderson route," thought as much of him as of any of his belongings. His death was caused from a severe attack of distemper. When this canine died there were none left in this country to fill his place.
Those who would keep their children in good health should watch for the first symptoms of worms and remove them with WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE. Price 25 cents.

Accommodating Disease.
Perhaps the record for school attendance belongs to a Walworth lad named Thomas Ward, who was never absent or late during his 11 years of school life, beginning with his fourth year. The local member of the school board for London tells the story that when the proof book received the attendance record for the eleventh year, which had to be specially struck to meet his case, the mother was questioned as to how her boy had been able to make so remarkable a record.
"Has he had the usual children's complaints?" she was asked.
"Yes, sir."
"The measles?"
"Yes, sir."
"Whooping cough?"
"Yes, sir."
"How is it, then, that he has never been away from school?"
"Well, sir, he had them in his holidays," was the interesting reply.

One Was Enough.
That illustrious astronomer, Professor Simon Newcomb, in an article on "Science and the Government" in the North American Review, gives an amusing instance of the ignorance even of the most prominent politicians regarding the work of the greatest scientists.
"It is said that some 50 years ago the British academy had printed a few copies of an important work for presentation to some foreigners who, from their prominence in the scientific world, were best entitled to be honored with the gift. Professor Airy, the astronomer royal, was requested to make a selection of the names. A few days after he had sent in his list he was informed by the secretary of the admiralty that 'my lords' were struck by the number of unknown names included and that they valued to make an inquiry on the subject. Airy asked the secretary for some specifications as to the names referred to."
"Well, as an example," said the secretary, "here is the name of Professor C. F. Gauss of Göttingen. Who is he?"
"Gauss is one of the greatest mathematicians of the age and stands among the two or three most eminent masters in physical astronomy now living. Who else do you wish to know about?"
"No one else. That will do," replied the secretary.

The Blood on the Knife.
"For the last ten years," said a curio dealer in the Old Quarter, "a broad bladed dagger with an imitation bronze handle has been lying among a lot of odds and ends in that corner showcase. I don't know where it came from, but I finally got it when buying some collection. At any rate, the other day, while looking over my dead stock, it occurred to me it might be furnished up and used as a paper knife. I took it out, scamped the handle a little to see what it was made of and then laid it on my desk to attend to a customer."
"When I picked it up again," he was told, "it seemed a child's play to tell the incident was so gruesome and apparently inexplicable that it set me trembling like a leaf. In a moment, however, my common sense came to the rescue, and what proved to be the correct explanation flashed into my mind."
"It was a trick dagger, for use either on the stage or in some secret society mummery, and the hilt contained a hidden reservoir for artificial blood. In scamping the side I had pressed a spring which opened a little valve, and out came the gook, still fluid. After all these years, I afterward found that the trick unscrupled for replenishing the supply."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Bees.
We cannot tell with any certainty when the first portable furniture was invented, and to judge by the fact it survives among our children, Noah was either ignorant of such things or, and more probably, denied himself their use the time he had in order to leave more room for the animals.
But long before Cooper somewhat apologetically made the soft Homer was proud to enumerate the dainties and decorated pieces of furniture in the tents of the heroes before Troy and the dainties of Odysseus' pleasure seeing once more his own beautiful bed as sympathetically as any other incident of the return, while the bed had a second best bed in case of the few very personal facts we know regarding our Shakespeare.
Shakespeare's Ulysses and Shakespeare's Aed was a bed then. In Greece, a couch worthy of a hero in England, a miniature stage of life, with its tapestried roof and hangings and curtains, that rose or fell with a pump on the great scenes of the domestic drama—Chamber's Journal.

Tales of the Sea.
Indolent nostrils evidence menaces, wide nostrils a speechifier. A tip jutting out far from the face is a token of vulgarity, redoubtment being the position of the owners of such features. It does not stand out far at the end. An aquiline nose denotes firmness of will and sense of justice; the long, narrow bridge proclaims a fastidious, self-defiant yet often tender nature. An eagle's qualities—combative, sagacious, passionate temper, power of hatred, jealousy, ambition—go with the more common type of Roman nose. The Greek form, on the contrary, tells of artistic capabilities and love of inanimate beauty.

Rough on English Tenants.
A carpenter in an English town having neglected to make a gibbet that had been ordered by the hangman on the ground that he had not been paid for the last one he had erected gave so much offense that the next time the judge came to the circuit he was sent for.
"Fellow," said the judge in a stern tone, "how came you to neglect making the gibbet that was ordered on my account?"
"I humbly beg your pardon," replied the carpenter. "I know I was ordered to make it, but I had not been paid for the last one I had erected, and I thought it would have been done immediately."

SORES AND ULCERS DRAIN THE SYSTEM, ENDANGER LIFE.

That old sore or ulcer, which has been a source of pain, worry and anxiety to you for five or ten years—maybe longer—doesn't heal because you are not using the proper treatment, but are trying to cure it with salves and ointments. While these are soothing and relieve pain to some extent, no real, permanent good can come from their use, because the disease is in the blood and far beyond the reach of external applications.
A sore heals promptly when the blood is in good condition, but never if it is diseased. The tendency of these old sores and ulcers is to grow worse, spreading and eating deeper into the flesh. They are a constant drain upon the system, gradually but surely ruin the health and sap the very life. A person's capacity for work or pleasure is soon lost in the great desire and search for something to cure. They S. S. makes a rapid and permanent cure of old sores and ulcers, and is the only medicine that is so weak and watery to overcome a deadly poison that has taken possession of the blood. Do not waste valuable time experimenting with them.
"Some years ago I was shot in the left leg, receiving what I considered only a slight wound. I developed into a festering sore and gave me a great deal of pain. I was treated by many doctors, and took a number of blood remedies, but none did me any good, and I had heard S. S. was highly recommended and concluded to give it a trial. The result was truly gratifying. It S. S. seemed to get right at the source of the trouble, and forced the poison out of my blood; soon after the sore healed and I was able to go on with my perfect use of the leg, which was swollen and very stiff for a long time."
J. H. McKinney, Lawrenceburg, Ky.
S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known; it is made of roots and herbs of wonderful purifying properties, which no poison can resist. S. S. S. quickly and effectively cleans the blood of all morbid, unhealthy humors, and the old, troublesome sores heal. When a little scratch or hurt falls on dead healthy, you may be sure your blood is bad. S. S. S. will soon put in order and cure you.
Our Medical Department is in charge of experienced physicians, who have made blood diseases a life study. If you will write them about your case, they will gladly furnish all information or advice wanted, without any charge whatever.

should always be kept in the house for the following reasons:

FIRST—Because, if any member of the family has a hard cold, it will cure it.
SECOND—Because, if the children are delicate and sickly, it will make them strong and well.
THIRD—Because, if the father or mother is losing flesh and becoming thin and emaciated, it will build them up and give them flesh and strength.
FOURTH—Because it is the standard remedy in all throat and lung affections.
No household should be without it. It can be taken in summer as well as in winter.

Fatal mistakes are being made by those who do not heed the earlier symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble that often end in Bright's disease or diabetes. When Foley's Kidney Care makes the kidneys well, how fully entitled it is to deliver —Moorman & Owen.

Should you wish to improve the quality of your bread use the Celebrated Yeast Foam. Nothing like it for producing a light, sweet, nutritious loaf of bread. It will retain its moisture and make far longer than bread raised with any other yeast put upon the market. Try it.

Capt. Ed. Howard, of the Howard's shipyard at Jeffersonville, Ind., sent to the water Tuesday afternoon the Steamer Boston. The Boston has the largest and broadest main deck of any boat on the Ohio. She is 285 feet long and her battery power equipment is sufficient enough to give her the title of a skipper of the first water.

and integrates. It is a panacea for all irregularities of her monthly periods. It is a constant friend to the expectant mother; a universal remedy to the nursing mother, both for herself and for her child, and finally when the change of life comes on, no medicine on earth is of equal efficacy to the woman in this critical period. Surely Pe-ru-na is the woman's friend.

That catarrh has any relation to harmonies in women is surprising to many. It is one of the mysteries of catarrh. This insidious disease penetrates to the very organ of the body. Mrs. L. M. Griffin, of Cambridge, Mass., says: "Your medicine did me a wonderful amount of good. It cured me of catarrh. I am thirty years old and had never borne any children, but since beginning your medicine I have borne two children. I had taken three or four bottles of Pe-ru-na. I am stronger than I have been since I was quite young. God bless you and your medicine forever." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, O. for free catarrh book.

The Judge Paid the Bill.
The story of the relation of politics and medicine, the Philadelphia Medical Journal says, is a story which was summed in haste to attend the child of a family that lived in two rooms in the heart of a large American city—New York. The child had been seized suddenly and seriously and just at election time. The mother was in despair, and when the doctor's progress was given she broke into wailing and violent self-condemnation for some horrible sin of the family to which she said the child's illness was due—a direct punishment for their crime. She would go and cure the magistrate for it all, her husband should resign from "the force" and such evil ways should be rebuked forever.

Curious to know how the magistrate could be held responsible for the child's illness, the doctor finally secured the confession that the crime of the poor, conscience-stricken woman consisted in all the names of many friends.

He returned as residing in her house, in answering to the lie, etc. The magistrate also had demanded this of all the neighbors in return for their descriptions of the child's illness.

The child recovered, and the magistrate paid the physician's bill.

The Two Romances.
Joe Jefferson told this story: "David Garrick and Spranger Barry were playing home at the same time in London. Barry played it at Drury Lane on the Monday and Garrick played it the next night at Covent Garden, and the town was divided as to which was the greater Romeo—in fact, there was quite a great excitement as to which they acted it upon such different lines and with such marvellously different conceptions that the people argued the case as to which it was the best. The fact is that Shakespeare intended it to be acted well, and if one man's temperament is better fitted to act in that way it would be for another temperament the other way."

So they asked, Mr. Addison, who was the Juliet alternately with the same house, which she considered better of the two, and she said: "It is to be said that they were both wonderfully great, but I will tell you how they impress me in the balcony scene. In the balcony scene of Romeo and Juliet, the eager, so intense and so full of fire and spirit that I'm afraid he'll jump up in the balcony to me and carry me off, and I'm afraid that I'm afraid I shall have to jump down from the balcony to him."

Good Feeders.
A hostess of the west, dining Washington, who proposed that dinner to some doctors visiting a convention in town and to the caterer when she had finished with her own guests.

"Now, Mr. X, I trust you will make this dinner as fine as possible, for my guests come from all over the country, and I want them to see how well we do things at the capital."

"It is the doctors you're going to entertain, then?" asked the caterer.

"Yes," responded the hostess. "I have invited a number of the doctors."

"Give me my list, then," said the caterer, and he forthwith proceeded to increase the quantity of everything upon the menu and to nearly double the amount of wine.

"What do you mean by that?" asked the patron. "Why have you increased the quantity of everything so materially?"

"I was all right at first for the ordinary great, madam," said the caterer, with an ex cathedra air, "but then I saw how doct and how drink they do eat and drink. Their thirst seems to give 'em an appetite."—Exchange.

The Potentuous Pineapple.
"It is a potentuous fact," says The National Druggist, "that the pineapple is considered the least healthy of all the edible fruits of the tropics by those who know anything of the nature of the fruit of the green and growing plant is credited in Java, the Philippines and throughout the far east generally, with being a food poison, or more correctly, with being the finger nail poison, formerly in use among aboriginal Javanese women almost universally. These women formerly or some thirty odd years ago, and sometimes more, cultivated a nail, sometimes more, on each hand, to a long, sharp point, and the least scratch from one of these was certain death."

She Was Ready.
He describing his journey—Then, leaving Gibraltar, made my way to Australia, and from there I went to the diamond mines in South Africa, where I made my fortune. Three do you follow me, Miss Gracie?"

"She (with a virtuous look)—To the world's end, Mr. Rocksworthy—Chicago Tribune.

Where the Blame Lies.
"No woman," he said in his superior mannerly way, "can sharpen a lead pencil."

"Well," she said, "you know where the blame lies?"

"No woman."

"With the pencil, of course. Woman was invented first, wasn't she?"—Chicago Post.

Genuine Optimism.
The President! That water is awful dry, and with those clouds overhead. The Optimist—Oh, never mind. The longer we wait the better grows the cheese.—Indianapolis Press.

An English artist who died on the road was shipped in his coffin to London recently by his relatives, who had no other property. "This cost $1, where as if he had gone as a corpse the cost would have been $50."

A Happy Mother's Gratitude

(LETTER TO MR. FERRIS OF N. Y.)

"DEAR MR. FERRIS—I HAVE MANY, many thanks to give you for what your Vegetable Compound has done for me."

After first confinement I was sick for nine years with prolapse of the womb, had pain in left side, in small of back, a great deal of headache, palpitation of heart and leucorrhoea. I felt so weak and tired that I could not do my work. I became pregnant again and took your Compound all through, and now have a sweet baby girl. I never before had such an easy time during labor, and I feel it was due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am now able to do my work and feel better than I have for years. I cannot thank you enough.—Mrs. E. E. Edwards, DEVER, ILL.

Wonderfully Strengthened.

"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Blood Purifier and Liver Pills and feel wonderfully strengthened. Before using them I was in a terrible state of health, felt like fainting every little while. I thought I must surely die. But now, thanks to your remedies, those fears are all gone.—Mrs. E. E. Edwards, DEVER, ILL.

A June Wedding.

The marriage of Lieutenant Will Slack Montgomery, U. S. N., and Miss Emily Clark Fox, of Polity, Hackensack, N. J., which was announced to take place in October, will take place Saturday, June 30, at the home of the bride's parents. Lieutenant Montgomery has been detached from St. Mary's and ordered to Newport News for the summer.

Lieutenant Montgomery is the son of Judge James Montgomery of Elizabethtown and is well known in Kentucky.

Reports show that over fifteen hundred lives have been saved through the use of One Minute Cough Cure. Most of these were cases of grippe, croup, asthma, whooping cough, bronchitis and pneumonia. Its early use prevents consumption.—A. R. Fisher.

Automatic Bicycle.

Prof. Archibald, of Battlement, a cousin of our correspondent at that place, has invented an automatic bicycle with a self running gear which will bear the weight of a man, and the source of motion is a small clockwork mechanism. It will probably gain the climax in bicycle invention.

What to Do With Them.

"Just before Montana became a state," said a citizen of Helena, "the country was overrun with cowboys. Most bitterly it was fought out. Anything that could be turned or twisted into a campaign argument was sought out and brought to the front. Commemorative Sparks, at that time head of the general land office, had made a ruling that the cowboys were to be cut down in diameter should be cut down for agricultural or mining purposes in territory belonging to the United States."

"This ruling had aroused a storm of indignation in Montana, and had brought about a proclamation of war. I was one of the main leaders in the Clark-Carter campaign. I was speaking one night at Helena, and as was natural, I attacked this ruling of the land commissioner and showed, at length to my audience, the wrongs of injury and injustice it did to both farmer and miner, and so I worked up to what had always previously proved an effective proposition by asking the question, 'What, my fellow citizens, can the farmer do with eight inch trees?'"

"The answer to this had previously invariably been silence, but this time a shrill voice in the rear of the hall blurted out, 'What do you want, cowboys?'"

"I was so surprised that I sat down amid the rabel and derisive jeers of that vast audience."—New York Tribune.

Admonished by Reporters.

"Well, that bumps me!" said the colonel. "I know that the cheek of those newspaper reporters is always in full view when they are talking to me. I am assumed to legislate for the state."

"All I know is," asserted the judge again, "that two newspaper reporters once admonished a session of the Illinois senate."

"How'd that do it—choke the speaker with copy paper?"

"No; they were very civilized about it. It was one day when everybody expected a Civil session, and only two of us senators put in an appearance, counting Dave Litterer, who was in the room."

"I want to get an interview with Litterer when this thing's over," said one newspaper reporter to another.

"So do I," said the other. "I move that we adjourn!" he shouted at Litterer.

"I second the motion," said the first reporter.

"It is moved and seconded that we now adjourn," said Litterer solemnly.

"Those fellows," he said, "will signify it in the usual manner."

"Aye!" shouted both of the reporters.

"Carried!" said Litterer.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORKERS

Hold a Profitable and Pleasant Meeting at Guston, Thursday, May 24th.

The Meads County Sunday-School Association met in annual convention at Guston, Thursday, May 24th. In the absence of the President, Rev. Litchfield conducted the devotional exercises and Mr. Hugh Hardaway was elected to preside over the meeting for the day.

Little was done at the morning session but the afternoon meeting satisfied the workers that the Spirit of God was in their midst.

Our State Sec'y, Prof. Fox, gave a plain instructive talk on Practical Sunday-Schools. The Value of Enthusiasm and The Responsibility of Teachers were fully discussed, and the Registrar of a Good Superintendent was the subject of a fine paper by Mr. A. M. Robinson, of Graham.

The Association wishes to thank the Sunday-School work over 60 years and has been from the time of its organization by intellectual training. The importance of the work in hand rose step by step until the climax was reached in a touching and beautiful paper.

Decision Day or Sowing without Reaping was read by Mrs. W. J. Pigott. Mr. Fox suggested that this paper be published and a similar request was made regarding the paper by Mr. Robinson.

The Association wishes to thank the News and Messenger for courtesies extended, also the good people of Guston for the beautiful dinner provided. Mr. A. S. Robinson, President and Secretary were re-elected.

By Mrs. Mattie Greenleaf.

Nature positively refused to be in perfect harmony with the reunion of the old veterans last week, who gathered to honor the memory of bygone days. How we all hoped God's canopy of blue would smile above, while the birds sang undisturbed songs of love, joy and peace, with soft breezes to join in to minister. But alas, the heavens were not continually, maybe, it was too much for old Kentucky to stand this time of atonement, this retrospection, this setting together of old neutral ground, more neutral in the '60's than at the close of a century!

On the 17th of June, in the city of Louisville, that drierest, quiet, Quaker metropolis, the Republican National Convention will meet, and by the way, think of that same city of such renown getting a regular nineteenth century move on her and voluntarily pledging to pay into the treasury of the Republican Committee one hundred thousand dollars for the party campaign fund. There is always a spirit of contest between different cities for the location of a convention. It seems that an enthralling contribution to the party campaign fund is a big figure of late years and almost every dollar of Philadelphia's pledge has been paid. I have a very distinct recollection of the conventions of 1880, '84 and '88 and a vivid one of '96. In the Republican convention of 1880, the contest of a presidential candidate almost turned upon the settlement of certain contested cases. The meeting of Grant's delegates made his nomination impossible and Garfield's nomination, resulting in 1880 there were several contested cases, contests that often engendered bitter feelings. I guess all of us who took any interest in the campaign of 1880 remember the delegates whose seats were contested over a hundred of the Republican Convention, and we remember what an important part the Nebraska contest over fair delegations, played on the Democratic convention of 1880. It was this contest from his own state between the gold and silver money that gave the gentleman from the "raining flat," prominence in that convention. How anxiously all eyes were turned towards him at the most available candidate. One oration at the right time and on the popular theme did the work in a dramatic manner. I do not recollect that prior to 1880 a platform reported by a committee was ever the subject of controversy. In both the Republican and Democratic platforms, the contest between the gold standard and free coinage and modified coinage propositions, caused a division. At St. Louis when the gold standard plank was laid, certain distinguished Republican delegates withdrew. The contest was equally as exciting over the monetary issue and it will ever remain as a classic event for all time to come. Again we will soon be in the midst of another scene. The voice of the people! Who will be the nominee for Vice? I wonder, anyhow! What is wanted in the government of our nation, or any nation, is more of kindly, human, intelligent sympathy. Queen Victoria has been an admirable sovereign in many particular, but she has never shown that sympathy to the treatment of her Irish subjects that the rest of the world expected, but it seems that at the eleventh hour she has visited the "Emerald Isle" once in about forty years. Had she gone often and been more in sympathy, perhaps the Irish problem would never have become so intricate and so difficult of solution.

Harry Weinsinger, a southern soldier and a citizen of Louisville, made an eloquent address at Madison, Maine, on Decoration day May 30. Peace, sweet peace, was the keynote of his beautiful oration. Louisville sent a wreath of flowers with the inscription, "From the Gray to the Blue, from Kentucky to Maine." Mr. Weinsinger married his husband's step-sister. He is a typical southern gentleman and was a brilliant Confederate soldier. One thing he said in his address, co-incidentally exactly with my views, and he has called attention to it before. The one time he was soldier of the union, now President of the United States, he was in balance that the time is now come when the grave of the northern soldier should be cared for by the Government. Mr. Weinsinger said that sentiment expressed by President McKinley was the most patriotic that had come from the lips of a man as a Confederate soldier. Mr. Weinsinger proclaimed it before a northern audience and in the presence of the "Grand Army of the Republic." Listen! Harry Weinsinger said "I voice the sentiment of the whole South when I say, 'Our dead are yours, and yours are ours.' Grand patriotic, beautiful thought! Amen! Amen! We, who went through the fearful struggle of the Civil War, feel today, as the Confederate Reunion in our own state, close, that as a people, we are in closer contact than at any period in history. We have thus given evidence of a pure patriotism, much more exacting than previous to 1860. The Gray and Blue have mingled and have thus created a monument cemented by affection and genial brotherhood, strong enough to defy the world. Yes, we are truly again one people—bitterness has been obliterated and when President McKinley called for volunteers to fight in the Spanish war, the response came as quickly from the South as the North; the gray and the blue, sons of union soldiers, and sons of southern soldiers, marched side by side under our Stars and Stripes, to victory. Peace and good will reign in all our states as to the fundamental principles of government. "Freedom, Liberty," another link in the chain which binds together the once warring factions of the North and South, was forged last week by the dedication of a monument erected to the memory of those who were gray and the blue, sons of union soldiers, and who died in mortal combat on the bloody field of Antietam. Such an event as the erection of that monument is almost without a parallel in all history! Our President and his Cabinet greeted the occasion of old soldiers from victorious sides, stood shoulder to shoulder with bare heads, all solemnly forgotten! Only heroes of the dead were remembered. The President is a brief address, played with the following: Lee, Jackson, Longstreet, along with the following: Grant, Sherman and Sheridan. Oh, the difference between that scene and thirty odd years ago! Shot and shell, hatred and bitterness, were rampant. Now, love of one flag, loyalty to one Government against the world, Grant and Lee at Appomattox, the Union saved! "Glory Hallelujah," we have never surrendered to a foreign flag; American soldiers are never sold to American soldiers only. We, those surviving grand old Confederates in our Metropolis last week, and all of us who remember the fearful struggle of the war, are growing old, soon all of those who took part in the reunion are old. A large number of friends and relatives attended the funeral conducted most impressively by the Rev. A. D. Leitchfield. Her whole long life had been one of elegant example for us all to imitate. LARGE YIELD.

The Texas Crops Are Up To The Standard This Year.

Mr. R. D. Hendrick and family, of McKinney, Texas, arrived at Ekron last week to visit friends and relatives. Mr. Hendrick said that his brother, Mr. Calvin Hendrick, who recently moved to Texas from Long Branch, Meade county, is doing well and is much pleased with his location.

Speaking of Texas crops, Mr. Hendrick said: "While we have had two weeks of dry weather, yet I have never seen a more promising outlook for a large wheat crop in my section. The corn crop will not be affected by the dry weather as the soil contains so much moisture."

It has been discovered that eye aires and waters containing sugar of lead often produce lead poison—fatal to sight if not to life. You run a great risk in using such preparations. A Disease of Male and Ate Grease. The following is an incident of the life of Ladyship narrated by Sir William MacCormack. "An officer related an incident which will serve to illustrate the lengths to which things will go in a regular fight. A shell fell into the male lines one afternoon, killing one man. In spite of other shells following the first one in rapid succession, so as to make occupation of the spot very dangerous, the men in the vicinity made a rush at the male like so many ravenous creatures, cutting off the flesh with their sharp knives in great chunks. They then in a few minutes built fires, roasted the meat and swallowed it at once. To make them more palatable the men tried their best to get the fat of the animal. The result was that the men who had been so brave in the fight, were now lying on the ground, their faces as green as the grass, and their hands and feet as cold as ice. The general inquired as to how many horses in the camp could carry their riders six miles in view of a sortie being made, and the answer came back that only 12 horses in the whole camp could do it"—London Lancet.

Only 2 1/2 miles southwest of Paris, France, is well known to tourists. Beautiful porcelain has been manufactured here since 1753, the royalties and republics which followed each other taking pains to have each period stamped on the back of every piece made. Thus in this silent but most eloquent way these frail historians indicate the changeful, brilliant story of their native land.

The Arab's Little Game. In The Agricultural Journal of the Cairo, Egypt appears an article on the vitality of wheat from Egyptian mummy cases. It is often asserted that samples of wheat from the same crop as that which Joseph stored in Pharaoh's granaries has been taken from mummy wrappings and, when planted, has grown. This is a very likely occurrence, as the Arabs have a habit of selling to tourists samples of grain which have in all likelihood come from the nearest field instead of from the ancient tomb. Indeed in many instances this "mummy grain" has been corn, and as corn was not known until the Arabs brought it from Africa, the fraud is apparent.

The English Way.

Fights are a recognized part of the school education among the boys in England. In America when boys fight it is because they are angry with each other; in England they fight because they are anxious to fight out which is the better man physically. They may have no quarrel or ill feeling, but if their friends cannot agree as to their respective prowess the ultimate result is pretty apt to be a "mill."—Self Culture.

Not a Warm Garment. "I can't find words," exclaimed the moral man, "to express my disgust for the man who uses his religion as a cloak. It's everything that's bad."

"The certainty is foolish to say the least," remarked the practical man, "for religion such as his is necessary so firmly he's liable to catch cold in it."—Philadelphia Press.

Check to Fritolier. "The Chinese minister says the customs were by American women strike him as being in some respects ridiculous," said Mrs. Rytina. "That's owing to his point of view. If he had to pay for a few of them, he'd soon learn to take them seriously."—Washington Star.

A large delegation from here attended the reunion.

Mrs. J. Bishop is in Evansville to see her parents.

Miss Anna Malin is improving, though still quite weak.

The Woman's Missionary society will meet with Mrs. H. B. Grinnell, Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Ditt and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Bland Shucklett.

Miss Jennie Lee Woolfolk left Tuesday for El Paso, Oklahoma, to spend the summer with relatives.

The oratorical contest of the Brandenburg Normal will take place Tuesday evening, June 12th. Commencement exercises June 13th.

Waltz-two-step—Two-step-waltz—at the Confederate hall; it should have been march-minuet-tango.

Miss Ruth McAlpin, a sponsor from Mississippi, and a cousin of Miss Mayday Pusey and Miss Pusey, the daughter of Miss Pusey, are in the city.

Dr. F. R. Wilder, partner of Dr. John Harlin was elected treasurer of the Kentucky State Dental Association, which convened in Louisville last week.

Miss Phyllis Phillips entertained the afternoon X. V. club Tuesday, and the evening was made for Miss Sallie Burch to give an evening reception in a few days.

When we, the south, laid down our arms, we did so in good faith, and notwithstanding numerous impositions, we have stuck to our compact, hard as it has been.

Mr. and Mrs. Beall Grinnell spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Frymire and Miss Jennie Lee Woolfolk. They attended the ball at the old mill.

The contest of Kentucky grammar was inaugurated by Kentucky handicraft. Lighted corn and corn for the old veterans and they imbibed like a veritable "hog homily."

Mr. Barney Worland, one of John Morgan's men, went up to meet his old comrades of the conflict. He enjoyed the reunion from a grand stand point; historical, literary and social.

The battalion of married Confederates was an inspiration. No rich government has sustained them, no pension has been there. Oh, they brought up the saddest recollections.

A large crowd from here attended the ball last Saturday night at the old mill. All report an elegant time. The Louisville ball failed to materialize, but local musicians furnished the dance time.

Mr. Tom Tetre's brother, with his daughter from Morganstown, spent several days here. He was here with John Morgan thirty odd years ago and was in the main battle at the reunion.

John C. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, Secretary of war under Jefferson Davis, was by long odds the handsomest man in the cabinet. He was, then, in the cabinet. He was, then, in the cabinet. He was, then, in the cabinet.

P. K. Malin and Frank Malin, of Ashland, Ky., Mrs. Mason McGonigle and Rob Malin, Mr. Tom Robinson, of Owensboro, Mr. Jesse Malin, of Vine Grove, were all at Mrs. George Worland's, (nee Zain Malin) last week to see their mother, Mrs. R. C. Malin, who is spending some time with Mrs. Worland.

W. L. Cabell, of Dallas, Texas, who was re-elected commander of the Trans Mississippi department, says he would have been in the city, if it were not for the fact that he is a southerner, would swap his birthplace or position for anything or anybody out of the Mason and Dixon line?

The Rev. B. M. Palmer, of New Orleans, in his great discourse in defense of those who were gray, was a classic. I have sat under the sound of that great divine twice in New Orleans in the 70's, in the Presbyterian church. He was then one of the most eloquent and most popular ministers in the "Crescent City."

The work of taking the United States census, commenced June 1st. Mr. Tom Roberts is Uncle Sam's emissary to collect all the facts general concerning each household in this town and precinct. The census must be taken carefully and with dispatch. Uncle Sam will, by July 1st, have a complete biography of each American.

Yosin died in double dose, we, who love, respect and honor President Jefferson Davis, want that monument erected. He, excepting Robt. E. Lee, is the greatest man that ever lived. Poor Gen. Wade Hampton was ill. I went up the Oncheta with him in 1870 and saw some of the most eloquent and most popular ministers in the "Crescent City."

Kentucky gave birth to both Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis. They were born within a few miles of each other and within a few minutes. Strange how their lives planned out presidents of conflicting sections and nations. Jefferson Davis died disgraced by a Government he at one time had faithfully served, the other was killed by an assassin's bullet. Kiss it!

Let 10 Democrats remember while they are hanging shouting epithets on the head of a friend of sound money, that William Goebel was a friend to sound money until the division came. Then he went with the radicals while others went with the conservatives. I believe Mr. Goebel was an honest man and a good Democrat according to his belief. He paid the penalty, but he was brave.

Miss W. D. Ashcraft, writer Spaulding, P. L. Yates, Ben Hook, "Dot" Gray and Willard and Albert, who were in the cabinet, were in the cabinet. He was, then, in the cabinet. He was, then, in the cabinet.

"To Err is Human."

Did to err all the time is criminal or not? Don't know the mistake of neglecting to do it. When a man makes a mistake, he is a criminal. When a man makes a mistake, he is a criminal. When a man makes a mistake, he is a criminal.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Never Disappoints

Cure in Oysters. "The demand for that little southern delicacy, the oyster, is always larger than the supply, and I have all I can do to obtain the 60 or 70 gallons which are daily required for the leading hotels, restaurants and clubs of this city," said a wholesale fish dealer in New York to a Washington Star writer. "Our northern oysters do not compare with the oysters of the south. They are not so large, and they are not so good. They are not so good as the oysters of the south. They are not so good as the oysters of the south. They are not so good as the oysters of the south."

The little crab found in the oyster is not, as commonly supposed by those who are ignorant of the oyster, the young of the blue crab, but is a distinct species. It is a measure of the oyster's health, the more crabs it contains, the more healthy the oyster is. The oyster is a measure of the oyster's health, the more crabs it contains, the more healthy the oyster is. The oyster is a measure of the oyster's health, the more crabs it contains, the more healthy the oyster is.

Turtles Trained to Fight. You want to go to China to see real fighting reduced to a science. There are no trained fighting turtles in the larger cities where there is a living by training animals to fight in exhibiting their savage qualities to interested audiences. They catch both mud and snapping turtles, feed them on raw meat and some sort of drug that makes them fight.

They have each been starved for a week. Each is handled by its owner, who has taught it to the killing point. The two turtles are then placed in a small ring, and only one comes out alive. The fight lasts from one to ten hours, and death generally occurs only when one of them has secured a throat hold on his opponent's antagonist—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Does it Pay to Buy Cheap? A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes, if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the only remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Boecher's German Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates the system, but it destroys the germ disease, but it stays inflammation, causes easy expectation, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try our bottle. Recommended many years by all druggists in the world. For sale by—A. R. Finzer.
